“Should’ve Listened to My Father That Night”

Should’ve listened to my father that night,
When I was struggling and wanted advice.
“You can’t give up without giving a fight”

I struggled to find myself, doing what’s right.
I trusted him ‘cause I knew he was wise.
Should’ve listened to my father that night

To me, life felt so dark, no form of light.
I thought life was pointless and worth no price.
“You can’t give up without giving a fight”

I felt like there was nothing good in sight,
Nothing that made me dress up and look nice.
Should’ve listened to my father that night

The world felt to me like it was too bright,

Hiding inside, face glued to a device.

“You can’t give up without giving a fight”

But that was then and now I’ve learned to fight,

Cause those who listen once will listen twice.

Should’ve listened to my father that night,

“You can’t give up without giving a fight”
